Methods

Course descriptions in the course catalog for Fall 2013, Winter 2014, and Spring 2014 semesters were reviewed to compile an inventory of sustainability courses. For this inventory, sustainability curriculum is defined as relating to or focusing on topics and questions that address aspects of how to better live within the regenerative capacity of the earth to meet the needs of present life generations without compromising the ability of future life generations to meet their essential needs as well.

Distinctions between relation and focus were made based on these criteria:
- Sustainability-focused courses concentrate on the concept of sustainability, including its social, economic, and environmental dimensions, or examine an issue or topic using sustainability as a lens.
- Sustainability-related courses incorporate sustainability as a distinct course component or module or concentrate on a single sustainability principle or issue.

Note: Courses that are cross listed in the course catalog under multiple departments are listed under each department here but were not counted multiple times when calculating the total number of sustainability-related and -focused courses.

The course descriptions used to create the inventory can be viewed by following the department name links.
