Quick Reference Guide: Pathways at the CTLR
Center for Teaching, Learning, and Research

During your first visit at the CTLR we will, together, do the following:

- Assess your academic situation
- Determine the best pathways for communicating what you need to succeed academically
- Develop an academic study plan for success

The CTLR Offers the Following Services:

- The Office of Learning Resources (OLR): Professional staff and specially trained student staff work with you to enhance academic excellence focusing on the following areas: study skills, time management, effective note taking, and test prep.
- Quantitative Skills Office: The Director of Quantitative Skills support is available to assist students in a number of ways; Peer Quantitative Tutors have experience and training in quantitative varied quantitative methods studied in courses at Middlebury.
- Resources for Course Content Areas: Peer Content Tutors approved by department faculty and trained by the coordinator of the peer content tutors, are available for supplementary assistance for entry-level courses. For additional information, call extension 3131.
- Writing Resources for Middlebury College Students:
  - Professional Writing Tutors: Starting the first week of the semester, on weekdays, student may make appointments with professional writing tutors. Call the CTLR @ 3131, or schedule an appointment online through Accutrack at go/accutrack.
  - Multilingual Student Support: Please contact Hector J. Vila, PhD (hvila@middlebury.edu) and visit go/esl for more information.
  - Peer Writing Tutors: Starting the second week of the semester, peer writing tutors are available in the CTLR Sunday through Thursday evenings from 7:30PM – to Midnight (except during winter term, school vacations and exams).