GET FUNDING FOR YOUR IDEAS

The Service Cluster Board Flex Fund promotes and funds volunteer service and is open to individual students and groups.

Community Engagement Minigrants fund up to $500 for individual students or groups for needs like conference fees, supplies, film-screening rights, and transportation.

The Cross-Cultural Community Service Fund supports international community service, advocacy, activism, and service learning, encouraging students to engage with a culture other than their own.

Academic Outreach Endowment Grants provide students and faculty with grants up to $4,000. With the help of the Center for Community Engagement director and a faculty advisor, students research and help meet community-identified needs and connect their research and work with their classes.

Internship funding supports immersion experiences and extended projects that relate to community engagement (and more) locally, nationally, and globally.

Drop in at 20 Old Chapel Road next to the Axinn Center. We’ll be happy to introduce you to community-connected opportunities and advise you or your group. Visit go.middlebury.edu/cce to learn more and to sign up for our weekly newsletter, or email us your questions.

“Through different roles with Page One Literacy, I found my place at Middlebury. I can now reflect on how much I grew as an individual and learned about communication, collaboration, and critical-thinking skills.”—CONNER GILBERT ’15
Deepen your sense of place and your role in the broader community.

The Center for Community Engagement at Middlebury College prepares you for a life of meaning and impact. Your participation helps strengthen communities and contributes to the common good—and gives you multiple opportunities to apply what you’re learning in the classroom to hands-on experiences. You’ll also develop meaningful skills and networks that can inspire future internships and even careers. Whether you participate in one of our programs or pursue a project of your own, we’re here to support you.

“Participating in CCE programs is a great opportunity to understand and learn more about social justice issues in a local and global context through direct interactions with members of our community on campus and beyond.” —ROBERT ZARATE-MORALES ’17
