●●● Your Rights, and Options to Consider

This notice of your rights and options is being shared with you because Middlebury has received a report that you may have experienced sexual misconduct (including rape, fondling, and sexual exploitation), dating or domestic violence or misconduct, or stalking, or because you otherwise may find the information to be helpful. This booklet, which includes information about filing complaints, obtaining support, care, resources and accommodations, and about applicable Middlebury policies and law enforcement procedures and options, can be useful to you as you assess your needs. The resources, policies, and protocols referenced herein apply to all Middlebury students, employees, and covered third parties in our Vermont-based schools and programs, of all gender identities and expressions and sexual orientations.

Getting Care and Support

- If you have experienced sexual misconduct, dating or domestic violence or misconduct, or stalking, there are many resources on the Middlebury campus and in the town of Middlebury that can offer support, information, and care.

Immediate Safety and Support

- Go to a safe place: your room, a friend's room or a colleague's office, the Department of Public Safety, or anywhere you'll feel safe.
- Call someone you trust. No matter how late it is, you shouldn't be alone. Consider reaching out to a reliable friend, or to a confidential resource such as MiddSafe or WomenSafe.
- If safety is an immediate concern or you would like to report the incident to the police, call 911 to access the police or emergency medical services, or contact Middlebury's Department of Public Safety (802-443-5911).

Medical Care

- We encourage you to seek immediate medical attention, even if you're not sure if you have any physical injuries. The medical staffs at the Middlebury College Center for Health and Wellness and the Porter Medical Center (adjacent to the Middlebury campus) can provide care for any physical injuries you may have sustained, can test for sexually transmitted infections and/or pregnancy, and can provide an examination by a sexual assault nurse examiner (SANE).

- A SANE is a nurse who is specially trained to collect forensic evidence. This evidence may be helpful to you now or in the future if you choose to file a complaint. If you wish to have a SANE exam, and the incident occurred within the last 24 hours, if possible try to preserve any evidence before your medical exam by not washing or changing clothes, brushing teeth or hair, eating, or taking other actions that might compromise evidence. Even if more time has passed, it may still be possible to collect evidence, and it is certainly possible to receive medical care and testing. Collecting evidence in no way obligates you to file a complaint with Middlebury or make a report to the police, but it preserves this information in the event that you decide to do either of those things, or seek a protection order, at a later date.

Mental Health Counseling, Advocacy, and Other Support Services

- We encourage you to consider talking with a confidential counselor on or off campus. You have complete control over what information you do or do not choose to share. You may or may not feel ready to talk about what happened, but in either case, counselors can provide a confidential and safe space to explore any feelings or challenges that have arisen for you after your experience. They can also provide you with information and support as you consider your needs, and can help you to connect with other resources, including Middlebury College Center for Health and Wellness, Employee and Family Assistance Program (EFAP), and Counseling Service of Addison County (CSAC).
- If you're not sure what you need right now, but you would like some confidential information and/or support while exploring your options, consider contacting MiddSafe or WomenSafe. MiddSafe advocates are trained Middlebury students and staff committed to providing a safe and confidential resource for students who may have experienced sexual misconduct, dating or domestic violence or misconduct, stalking, and/or other personal violations. They can provide information and support as you consider your needs, and can help you to connect with campus-based and external resources. MiddSafe operates during the academic year and offers more limited hours in the summer months. WomenSafe offers expanded information and advocacy services for individuals of all gender identities and sexual orientations in Addison County, including support navigating court cases, obtaining protection orders, and accessing temporary housing. WomenSafe provides services year-round.

- Religious and spiritual advisors are also confidential resources. Members of the chaplain's staff on campus, and members of the clergy off campus, can provide emotional support and help you to gather additional information and connect to resources.
- Contacting one or more of these or other confidential resources in no way precludes you from choosing to file a complaint later with Middlebury or with local law enforcement. More information on filing a complaint on or off campus can be found on pages 14–20.

Financial Concerns for Support Services

Many of the services, such as MiddSafe, Middlebury College Center for Health and Wellness, WomenSafe, and the College chaplains, are free. If concerns about expenses are keeping you from seeking care, please talk with a confidential MiddSafe or WomenSafe advocate, and, for employees, with EFAP. These resources can advise you about cost coverage for those services that do require payment, and possible reimbursement through the Vermont Victim Compensation Program.

Accommodations and Resources

It is not necessary to file a complaint with Middlebury, participate in a Middlebury adjudication process, or file a criminal complaint with local law enforcement in order to request help from Middlebury. We will provide assistance to help you access support services and accommodations, which include but are not limited to the following:

- Academic Accommodations: If your experience is compromising your ability to meet your academic obligations, Middlebury may be able to provide you with support options. These may include but are not limited to assignment deadline extensions, work group adjustments, course changes or late drops, incompletes, or other arrangements as appropriate.
- No Contact Orders and No Trespass Notices: No Contact Orders (NCOs) are Middlebury's nondisciplinary measures to prevent two or more individuals from communicating directly or indirectly with each other. In most cases, NCOs are put in place at the request of one or both parties, but in some circumstances, Middlebury may put one in place to preserve the safety of both parties and other community members.

A No Trespass Notice (NTN) prohibits the presence of an individual on Middlebury property, and on properties on which Middlebury programs are occurring. Violating an NTN or an NCO is a violation of Middlebury policy. NTNs are legally enforceable; a violation may therefore also lead to arrest and prosecution.

- Residential Accommodations: These accommodations may include arranging for new housing, or providing temporary housing options, as appropriate. Temporary accommodations may sometimes include providing a second residential space for an individual to access on a short-term basis for additional privacy.
- Visa and Immigration Assistance: If you have questions or concerns about how your experience and needs may intersect with your visa and/or immigration status, please contact International Student and Scholar Services (ISSS) for more information.
- Student Financial Aid Assistance: If you have questions or concerns about the impact of your experience on your student financial aid, please contact Student Financial Services for more information.
- Disability-Related Needs: If you have a disability and have related concerns about your needs with regard to your experience, please share them with any of the resources on pages 20–23, as well as with the staff of the Student Accessibility Services Office (students) or Human Resources (employees).
- Advocacy Support: MiddSafe advocates are trained students who provide free and confidential support, information, referrals, and advocacy in person, via the hotline, and online through the advocate website. WomenSafe advocates offer similar and expanded services for Addison County residents of all gender identities and sexual orientations.

- Additional Measures: Middlebury can make other arrangements, such as changing transportation or working arrangements or providing other employment accommodations, on a case-by-case basis to provide individuals with distance from another party or to meet related needs.

If you would like to request these or any other accommodations or assistance, please contact the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator, a Human Relations Officer (HRO), a Commons dean, a program director, Human Resources (staff or faculty), or the dean of the faculty or provost (faculty). The request will be evaluated and responded to after appropriate consultation, as needed. Factors to be considered may include the following:

- the specific needs expressed by the individual seeking the service or accommodation (“complainant”);
- the severity and/or pervasiveness of the allegations;
- any continuing effects on the complainant;
- whether the complainant and the person against whom the allegations were made share the same residence hall, dining hall, class, extracurricular activities, transportation, or job location; and
- whether other measures have been taken to protect the complainant.

When an individual reportedly subjected to sexual assault, domestic or dating violence, or stalking makes a reasonable request for accommodations like those described above, Middlebury is obligated to comply with that request if such accommodations are reasonably available. Middlebury will maintain as confidential any services, accommodations, or protective measures provided to complainants, to the extent that maintaining such confidentiality would not impair Middlebury’s ability to provide them.

Additional Information

- Preserving Evidence: In addition to trying to preserve any of the physical evidence referenced above (“Medical Care”), if possible, try to preserve all evidence related to an incident or incidents, including any electronic information, text messages, social media posts, phone records, emails, clothing, or other documentation or materials. Even if you don’t wish to pursue a complaint with Middlebury or local law enforcement or seek an order of protection (see below) at this time, it’s a good idea to preserve the evidence in a safe place in case you change your mind at a later date. You may also want to consider writing down and preserving all of the details you remember about your experience(s), as well as the names of individuals you believe may possess relevant information and/or evidence.
- Orders of Protection: In addition to (or instead of) a Middlebury No Contact Order, No Trespass Notice, or other Middlebury processes, individuals who are being or who may have been subjected to sexual misconduct, dating or domestic violence or misconduct, or stalking also have the right to pursue orders of protection (also called “restraining orders” and/or “relief from abuse orders”) from United States courts. These are different names for a court order that is designed to stop violent, harassing, and/or threatening behavior by one party (“the respondent”) against another party (“the complainant”). It can also stop any contact or communication from the respondent to the complainant, and protect the complainant and the complainant’s family members, as appropriate, from the respondent. A court may award an order of protection on a temporary basis, in which case a judge institutes one immediately, and it is reviewed subsequently through a court hearing process to determine if it will remain in effect for a longer term. Middlebury will provide assistance as requested to individuals who wish to make contact with law enforcement authorities and other external resources to seek such orders, and Middlebury will respect and assist with the implementation of protection orders on premises it owns or controls, to the extent practicable. If you'd like to learn more about or obtain an order of protection, please contact the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator, a Human Relations Officer (HRO), Public Safety staff member, or program director.

For general information about orders of protection, including frequently asked questions, resources, and considerations, see information from the National Domestic Violence Hotline: go/protectionorder from the Middlebury website. For more information about protection orders and relief from abuse orders in Vermont (including how to apply for an order and how the order is enforced), please contact WomenSafe.

- Privacy: As you consider your choices and resources, you may have concerns about maintaining your privacy. Middlebury will handle information in a sensitive manner and will endeavor to protect your privacy to the extent we can do so and still meet our obligations to respond to reports of sexual misconduct, domestic and dating violence and misconduct, stalking, and/or related retaliation. Although the Clery Act (a federal statute) requires Middlebury to report annually the number of sexual misconduct, dating and domestic violence, and stalking reports we receive, and to issue public campus warnings as appropriate, Middlebury will not include the names of complainants or other personally identifying information in either disclosure. However, if there is an independent investigation, lawsuit, or criminal proceeding related to sexual misconduct, domestic or dating violence or misconduct, stalking, or related retaliation, those involved or others may be required by law to provide testimony or documents (e.g., reports, witness statements, and any other information gathered or obtained by Middlebury in a particular matter).
- Confidentiality: You may want clarification about which resources are confidential (individuals who are legally and ethically bound to keep confidential all information shared with them in the course of providing counsel and support, except under certain unusual circumstances), and which resources are not (individuals who are required to report any incident they learn of that may involve sexual misconduct, domestic or dating violence or misconduct, or stalking to an HRO or the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator).

- Confidential Resources: In general, communications between a person seeking care and a medical or mental health professional, religious advisor, or trained sexual assault advocate are confidential. The medical, mental health, and religious professionals and MiddSafe advocates at Middlebury, and their off-campus counterparts, respect and protect confidential communications from students, faculty, and staff to the extent they are legally able to do so. These professionals may have to breach a confidence, however, when they perceive a serious risk of danger or threat to any person or property. They may also be required by law to report certain crimes (e.g., any allegation of sexual or physical abuse of a person under 18).
- Nonconfidential Resources: All faculty and staff members, including residential life staff and ombudspersons, who are not medical or counseling professionals, clergy, or MiddSafe advocates, are not permitted to honor requests for confidentiality. Nonconfidential faculty or staff who learn of an incident of alleged sexual misconduct, domestic or dating violence or misconduct, stalking, or related retaliation involving a student are required to report that information to an HRO or the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator, all of whom are responsible for ensuring that individuals who may have experienced this prohibited conduct receive information about their rights, resources, and support options.

For detailed information about confidentiality, please see “Confidentiality” at go/sexualmisconduct.

Filing a Complaint with Middlebury

- We are always deeply concerned when behavior that may constitute sexual misconduct, dating or domestic violence or misconduct, or stalking comes to our attention, and we would very much like to gather more information. Sexual misconduct (including sexual assault and sexual exploitation), domestic and dating violence and misconduct, stalking, and related retaliation are strictly prohibited under Middlebury's Policy Against Sexual Misconduct, Domestic and Dating Violence and Misconduct, and Stalking (SMDVS policy). We encourage you to file a complaint with Middlebury by contacting the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator or a Human Relations Officer (HRO). Our policies are designed with the needs of students and employees in mind, and we make every effort to conduct investigations with care and sensitivity. If you are considering filing a complaint, but want to learn more about the investigation and adjudication process before doing so, we encourage you to request an informational meeting with the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator. You do not need to share any information about your experience during this conversation, and you are welcome to bring a support person with you if that would be helpful.
- If you have concerns that you may be retaliated against by anyone at Middlebury for filing a complaint, please know that retaliation by any member of the Middlebury community against someone because they have reported an incident or participated in an investigation is explicitly prohibited. Middlebury will take steps to prevent retaliation and will take strong responsive action if retaliation occurs.

Reporting to Law Enforcement

- You also have the right to report the incident to the police and/or seek a protective order from a court (or choose not to do so). Middlebury will provide, upon request, assistance if you decide to pursue either option. These options are available to you regardless of whether you choose to file a complaint with Middlebury. If you would like to request such assistance, or would just like to learn more about these options, please contact Public Safety, a Human Relations Officer (HRO), or the Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator. WomenSafe staff and volunteers can provide additional support with these processes to survivors of all gender identities, and can provide information and advocacy.
- For more information about reporting to law enforcement, including what to expect, considerations, and additional resources, please see Appendix C ("Resources") to Middlebury's SMDVS policy at go/sexualmisconduct.

Middlebury's Investigation and Adjudication Process

Middlebury's process for addressing complaints of sexual assault, domestic and dating violence and misconduct, stalking, and related retaliation is summarized below. In the event of any differences between this summary and the more detailed terms of Middlebury's SMDVS policy, the language of the SMDVS policy prevails over the language of this summary.

As detailed in our SMDVS policy, Middlebury's procedures

- are prompt, fair, and impartial from the initial investigation to the final result;
- are conducted by professionals who receive, at a minimum, annual training on issues related to sexual misconduct, dating and domestic violence and misconduct, and stalking, and on how to conduct a prompt, fair, and impartial investigation and adjudication process that protects the safety of complainants and promotes accountability;
- provide both parties with the same opportunities to have others present during any related meeting, including the opportunity to be accompanied to any related meeting or proceeding by an advisor of their choice;
- provide for simultaneous notification, in writing, to both parties of
 - the result of Middlebury's disciplinary proceedings,
 - Middlebury's procedures for the complainant and the respondent to appeal the result of our disciplinary procedures, if available,
 - any change to the result before it becomes final, and
 - when the result becomes final;
- are completed within reasonably prompt time frames designated by the SMDVS policy, including a process that allows for the extension of time frames for good cause with written notice to both parties of the delay and the reason for the delay;

- are conducted in a manner that is consistent with Middlebury's policies and transparent to both parties;
- include timely notice of meetings at which the complainant and respondent may be present;
- provide timely and equal access to both parties and appropriate officials to any information that may be used during the process; and
- are conducted by professionals who do not have a conflict of interest or bias for or against the complainant or the respondent.

Middlebury utilizes trained, experienced investigators to conduct investigations into complaints of sexual misconduct, domestic and dating violence and misconduct, and stalking, and utilizes trained, experienced administrators (Middlebury's Human Relations Officers or HROs) to make the official determination as to whether the policies under investigation were violated. All meetings in the investigation/adjudication process involve one-on-one conversations with investigators or HROs to which each party can bring an advisor of their choice. There is no in-person hearing at which parties have to testify formally in front of a panel, or interact with or be cross-examined by each other.

In general, the investigation process proceeds as follows:

- The investigator interviews parties and witnesses, and collects evidence.
- Both parties are invited to review all of the evidence.
- Each party may meet with the HRO and investigator to share their feedback on the evidence.
- The investigator prepares a report with a recommended finding and a rationale for that finding. The report is shared with both parties, each of whom may submit a written response to the report to the HRO.

- The HRO considers the investigator’s report, all evidence, and both parties’ written responses. Using the preponderance of the evidence standard (“more likely than not”), the
- HRO then makes the official determination as to whether the policies under investigation have been violated. If a policy violation is found, the sanctions are determined by a designated Middlebury administrator based on the status of the respondent (e.g., whether the individual found to have violated policy is a student, faculty member, or staff member).
- Both parties are provided with equal appeal rights, as applicable, to the extent appeal rights are provided. The governing, detailed procedures are outlined further in the SMDVS policy.

Sanctions for students found to have violated the SMDVS policy could include written reprimands, probationary status, an official letter of discipline, or suspension or expulsion from any or all Middlebury program(s) in which the student is enrolled or participating. Other nondisciplinary actions deemed appropriate may also be implemented (e.g., remedies applied to the respondent to address the needs of the complainant, including but not limited to room changes, class changes, building restrictions, extracurricular activity restrictions, modification of No Contact Orders to favor the complainant, and other actions to preserve the rights of the complainant to a safe environment). Although sanctions for violation(s) of this policy can include any form of discipline as stated in this section, students found to have committed sexual assault will most likely receive a sanction of suspension or expulsion.

Middlebury may also provide notice of the matter to the appropriate supervisory authority of any Middlebury program in which the respondent intends to participate, who may consider this information in determining admission and/or other program participation parameters. Notification may also be provided to the home institution of non-Middlebury undergraduate and graduate students or any other program in which the student is enrolled or to which the student is pursuing enrollment.

Sanctions for employees found to have violated the SMDVS policy may include written reprimands, or suspension or termination of employment. Nondisciplinary measures (e.g., No Contact Orders or reassignment of duties or work areas) might also be taken as deemed appropriate under the circumstances.

Sanctions are more fully described in the “Sanction” section and Appendix F of the SMDVS policy (see go/sexualmisconduct).

Additional Questions

Middlebury’s Civil Rights and Title IX Coordinator is available to answer any additional questions you may have. Please contact the coordinator to arrange for a connection in person or by phone or email.

If you have experienced sexual misconduct, domestic or dating violence or misconduct, or stalking, you are not alone. There are many resources at Middlebury on campus and off campus that can offer support, information, and care.

Emergencies: dial 911. In nonemergency situations, please call one of the following departments that serve Addison County. In most cases, you should contact the law enforcement department of the town where the crime occurred.
