History of the Middlebury Institute

- Founded in 1955 as the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies by Gaspard Weiss & group of local supporters
- Initial focus on teaching language in social & cultural context
- Over time, added new policy programs and centers
- Today: 13 graduate degree programs, centers + initiatives
- International reputation
- 2005 – affiliated with Middlebury; 2010 – “A Graduate School of”
- 2015 – Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey
Students

- 750 students
- 31% international students
- Of U.S.-born students, 90% have lived and/or worked abroad
- 45 countries
- 33 languages
- 4 years of professional experience
Mission

• Currently in the process of updating our mission statement
• A leading contender: “The Middlebury Institute trains international professionals seeking to advance understanding, promote peace, and drive change.”
Graduate School of International Policy & Management

- International Business (MBA)
- International Education Management
- International Environmental Policy
- Development Practice & Policy: International Policy & Development + Public Administration (MPA)
- International Trade & Economic Diplomacy
- Nonproliferation and Terrorism Studies
Graduate School of Translation, Interpretation, & Language Education

- Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL)
- Teaching Foreign Language (TFL)
- Translation and Interpretation (T&I)
- Translation and Localization Management (TLM)
Centers & Initiatives

• James Martin Center for Nonproliferation Studies (CNS)
  – Operates from Monterey, with offices in D.C. & Vienna
  – Chosen by Austrian Foreign Ministry to run Vienna Center for Disarmament and Non Proliferation (VCDNP)

• Center for the Blue Economy (CBE)
• Center for Conflict Studies (CCS)
• Center for Social Impact Learning (CSIL)
• Cyber Initiative