ONGOING STUDENT EXHIBIT

Fed Up: The Fight for Ethical Food Systems in Addison County
Curated by participants in Middlebury College’s 2015 MuseumWorks Summer Internship Program, this exhibition examines the human impact of food systems in Addison County, from cultivation to disposal. MuseumWorks, a collaboration between the Middlebury College Museum of Art, the Middlebury College Center for Careers and Internships, the Henry Sheldon Museum of Vermont History, and the Vermont Folklife Center, introduces Middlebury students to the professional world of museums through a combination of internship placements and professional development.

Come to an information session about the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine. The talk will be given by Dr. Maggie Paik P’19 and will include specifics about the University of Chicago, general information about what medical schools look for in their applicants, and what makes for a strong medical school application.
Adirondack House, Library

1:00—
Organic Farm Open House
The Middlebury College Organic Farm is a three-acre plot of vegetables, fruits, and flowers stewarded by Middlebury students. The farm serves as an inclusive space that supports students’ holistic development in an environment that promotes discourse about world food issues. At the farm students learn about agro-ecological systems and small-scale food production practices they will be able to use throughout their lives. While growing rows of lettuce for Atwater Dining Hall or visiting Vermont farms, students come to understand the challenges associated with food production, but also explore and help develop local and organically based solutions.

The farm is located in the field a half mile behind McCardell Bicentennial Hall. Walk or drive down the hill (going west) from the College on Route 125 for a half mile. Take a right at the wooden sign that reads “Middlebury College Organic Farm.” If you are driving, you can leave your car at the sign and walk the short dirt road to the farm.

1:00—
Old and New from Library Special Collections and Archives
A selection of very old (and very newly acquired) items from the College archives will be on exhibit in the Special Collections reading room.

Join faculty, staff, and current students involved with our programs, including Privilege & Poverty, TEDx Middlebury, and the CSE Fellowship. We’ll have Vermont/local apple cider and refreshments—bring your ideas and questions!
118 South Main Street (Route 30)

3:00—
Careers in the Common Good: Sushi and Social Change
Sponsored by the Center for Careers and Internships, this interactive exercise is a unique opportunity for students to network during Fall Family Weekend with parents who have worked to advance the common good—planned or through happenstance—whether through careers in the public, nonprofit, business, or environmental sectors, serving on boards, or volunteering. Whether it’s in government, social services, community development, advocacy for better school lunches, or microfinance, this is an opportunity for our students to interact and network with professionals (parents!), promoting a deeper understanding of the different sectors while thinking about how to craft a career with a positive social impact. Bring your student!
Adirondack House, Coltrane Lounge
3:00 – Odyssey Marathon Reading
6:00 p.m.
Beginning Friday afternoon, the Eve Adler Department of Classics will sponsor a marathon reading of Homer’s Odyssey in English. The Odyssey is an epic Greek poem that recounts the travels of Odysseus as he makes his way home after the Trojan War. The reading, by both students and faculty, will continue through the weekend, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Saturday and 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Sunday.

8:00 – Sophie Shao and Friends
9:45 p.m.
We can think of no better way to open the Performing Arts Series’ 96th season than to invite back our friend, cellist Sophie Shao, whose impromptu, but always note-perfect, chamber ensembles have proved a highlight of many recent seasons. The Times Union reflects, “The players maintained a seamless cohesion and a warm, lean tone. This was all the more admirable because they’re not a regular ensemble, just colleagues and friends.” The program includes trios by Beethoven and Dvořák, plus Brahms’ Piano Quartet in C Minor. Reserved Seating. Tickets: $25/20/6
Mahaney Center for the Arts, Robison Hall (Concert Hall)

Noon– 1:00 p.m. Snow Bowl Open House and Ski Lift Ride Benefit
Take a chairlift ride to the top of Worth Mountain and enjoy a breathtaking view! You’ll see Vermont dressed in fall splendor as the panoramic scene stretches from the Green Mountains to the Adirondacks across Lake Champlain.
Purchase of a ticket (adults $5; students and children 12 and under $2) includes a ride on the Worth Mountain chairlift, live music by student bands, mingling, and more. There will be a barbecue in full swing all afternoon, with food and drinks available for purchase. Proceeds will go to the Middlebury College ski patrol, as well as the Middlebury Community Care Coalition, a nonprofit, volunteer-based organization dedicated to providing basic food and housing needs in and around Middlebury.
We will also be collecting nonperishable food items for HOPE, our local food shelf. All are welcome to drive up on their own (just 20 minutes from campus), but free Addison County Transit (ACTR) shuttle bases will also be running between Adirondack Circle and the Snow Bowl (to the Bowl: 11:40 a.m., 12:55 p.m., 2:10 p.m.; back to the College: 1:30 p.m., 2:45 p.m., 4:00 p.m.). The bus will stop at the Bread Loaf Inn for those wishing to depart or return from the Bread Loaf campus. The ski patrol would love to see you there!

MCA CURRENT EXHIBITIONS

The Art of Storytelling:
Five Tales from Asia, Then and Now
The five Asian tales at the center of this exhibition have inspired artists for centuries and continue to capture the imaginations of writers of comics and graphic designers today. Painted and printed interpretations of these compelling narratives from the 16th century to the present are complemented by contemporary comics, illustrations, and other digital media, as well as a studio space where visitors can view sketches by artists in the show and create their own comics. Free
Middlebury College Museum of Art, Overbrook Gallery

Naked Truth: The Body in Early 20th-Century Germany and Austrian Art
Selected prints, drawings, and watercolors by Gustav Klimt, Egon Schiele, Otto Dix, George Grosz, Max Beckmann, Käthe Kollwitz, and others—whose work wrestled with the relationship between the nude body and contemporary morality—are featured in this exhibit, which explores the conceptions of the human body and the manner of its visualization in the period leading up to and following the First World War, a time that changed the world’s notions of flesh and blood forever. Presented in conjunction with the 2015 Clifford Symposium, The “good” Body. Free

MCA ONGOING EXHIBITIONS

Ancient Mediterranean and Early European Art
In this updated and revised installation, recent acquisitions in Egyptian and Mesopotamian art, as well as Greek, Roman, and Medieval European objects, include an Egyptian Old Kingdom relief and an early 15th-century Italian panel painting.
Boesky Lobby and Lower Gallery

European and American Art
This regularly changing installation features highlights of the Museum’s collection of Western art from the Renaissance to the end of the 19th century, including landscapes by American painters Jasper Cropsey and John Frederick Kensett, 16th- and 17th-century European religious and devotional images, and American and European sculpture.

Cerf Gallery

Asian Art
Featuring a range of East Asian ceramics: Chinese funerary sculpture from the Han (206 B.C.E.–220 C.E.) and Tang (618–906) dynasties, celadons of the Song dynasty (960–1279), blue-and-white enameled porcelains of the Ming (1368–1644) and Qing dynasties (1644–1911), and more.
