

Criteria for Cross-listing with GSFS (rev. 9/28/18)

A course can be cross-listed with GSFS if the majority of course materials engages with three of the following requirements:

- Critically examines the social construction of women, gender, and or sexualities; always considers these categories as co-constituted by race, ethnicity, class, and/or disability.
- Explores the interdisciplinary production of knowledge, the use of methodologies and theory from the vantage point of women, gender and/or sexualities
- Deploys feminist and/or queer theories to understand cultural assumptions about women, gender, and/or sexualities
- Critically examines the development and practice of feminist and/or queer movements, including the contestations within them.
