

Master of Arts in International Education Management

Middlebury Institute of International Studies
at Monterey

< Anna Galbraith

Alumna

Why did you choose the Middlebury Institute?

I wanted a school that would foster the skills I had learned living abroad into something marketable. The IEM program felt like it was tailor-made for me: I would have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience through the practicum.

What made the Institute a special experience for you?

I got to have class with some of the most dynamic people I've ever met, and learn from professors who were generous with their time and knowledge.

What are you doing now?

I am an experiential learning program manager for the Andean Alliance for Sustainable Development in Peru. We work to leverage the knowledge and skills of high-altitude farming communities into more sustainable and ecological practices. I design, market, and run experiential and service education programs for North American students and get my hands dirty at our demonstration farm.

INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION MANAGEMENT (IEM)

One to Two Years Online

Gain the leadership training you need to manage global education programs. This master's is specifically designed to expand your professional expertise and network to advance your career.

THE MIDDLEBURY INSTITUTE ADVANTAGE

In your final semester, you will put theory to practice through a practicum, which can be your current work position or a new professional opportunity. Many students leverage these opportunities for full-time job offers and promotions.

Our interactive approach to online learning provides a high level of engagement with your faculty, career advisor, classmates, and alumni. You will join a supportive community and build a vast professional network while taking advantage of our flexible course scheduling.

Continue working as you study by taking part-time, asynchronous courses.

CAREER OUTCOMES

Our graduates advance careers in education abroad, international student and scholar services, language programs, citizen diplomacy programs, government agencies, nonprofit organizations, and more.

CURRICULUM

Build your expertise in these areas:

- International education theory, strategy, and action
- Intercultural competence and social justice
- Program design and assessment
- Program administration
- Sustainable education

FACULTY

In addition to their academic expertise, our faculty are dedicated teachers, each with years of experience in major international organizations like NAFSA, Comparative and International Education Society (CIES), the Forum on Education Abroad, and Diversity Abroad. They bring a genuine commitment to the success of our students and become mentors and colleagues.

AFFORDABLE INVESTMENT

Our online programs are affordably priced, and you can earn your online IEM degree for less than $31K. You can also take advantage of employer benefits to help you cover your costs.
