Grace Period Continued

What about my undergraduate loans?
Do I have a grace period on those?

- Did you re-enter school at least half time within 6 months of graduation?
 - If yes, then your grace period is reinstated*. If not, you will enter payment on your undergraduate loans within 30 to 60 days of your last date of attendance

*Any time you do not use up the full 6 month grace period, it is reinstated!
So if you are planning to enroll again, and you do so before your 6 month grace period is up, you get your grace period back!

What is Capitalization?

Definition: “The addition of accrued interest to outstanding principal.” (Applicable for unsubsidized loans)

- Generally, unpaid interest is capitalized each time the borrower enters repayment (after grace period, deferments, forbearances)
- Grad Plus definition of “entering repayment” varies by lender.
 - Some define it as when the final disbursement on the loan is made.
 - Some define it as when your last formal date of attendance.

Income Based Repayment (IBR) Plan

- Caps your required monthly payments on the major types of federal student loans at an amount intended to be affordable based on income and family size
- Lowers monthly payments for borrowers who have high loan debt and modest incomes
- May increase the length of the loan repayment period, accruing more interest over the life of the loan

IBR Qualifications

- Must have a partial financial hardship
 - You have a partial financial hardship if the monthly amount you would be required to pay on your IBR-eligible federal student loans under a 10-year Standard Repayment Plan is higher than the monthly amount you would be required to repay under IBR.
- Payment amount may increase or decrease each year based on your income and family size.
- Payment required may not cover monthly interest accrued. This is called negative amortization.

Advantages

- Pay based on what you earn
 - Monthly payment amount will generally be 10 to 15 percent of your discretionary income
 - To be eligible, payment cannot be more than the amount you would be required to pay under the 10-year Standard Repayment Plan
- Interest payment benefit—If your monthly IBR payment amount doesn't cover the interest that accrues (accumulates) on your loans each month, the government will pay your unpaid accrued interest on your Direct Subsidized Loans (and on the subsidized portion of your Direct Consolidation Loans) for up to three consecutive years from the date you began repaying your loan under IBR.

Disadvantages

- You may pay more interest
 - Reduced monthly payment in IBR generally means a longer repayment time period
 - May pay more total interest over the life of the loan than with other repayment plans
- You must submit annual documentation
 - You must provide the documentation or your monthly payment amount will be changed to the amount you would be required to pay under the 10-year Standard Repayment Plan
 - If you do not provide the required income documentation, unpaid interest will also capitalize, often resulting in reverse amortization.
- You may have to pay taxes on any loan amount that is forgiven after 25 years.
- Your payments may be higher if you are no longer eligible for IBR-

If you become ineligible for IBR and have to go back to the standard 10 year repayment plan, your payment could be higher than it was when you initially entered repayment

● Married?

- Contact your loan servicer to determine if your payment might be lower if you and your spouse file taxes separately. There may be tax implications for filing separately so it is advisable that you contact a tax consultant as well.
- If your spouse has federal student loans your servicer can help you determine if their loans can be considered when establishing your repayment amount.

Pay As You Earn (PAYE)

- Provides monthly payments tied to income
- Allows borrowers to cap their student loan payments at 10% of discretionary income (vs. 15% with IBR)
- Reduces the number of years for forgiveness from 25 to 20 for private sector employment
- Unpaid interest on subsidized loans is forgiven for three years
- Must renew your eligibility annually, or unpaid accumulated interest will capitalize and you will be put back on standard 10 year repayment plan

- Must not have loan debt prior to Oct.1, 2007
- Must have a new loan disbursed after Oct, 1 2011

Eligible Loans:

- Direct Stafford Loans
- Direct Graduate Plus Loans
- Direct Consolidation Loans
- Consolidated FFEL Loans
- Consolidated Perkins Loans

Non-Eligible Loans:

- FFEL Loans- Not consolidated
- All Parent PLUS loans
- Private Loans
- Perkins Loans- Not consolidated

Revised Pay As You Earn (REPAYE)

- Newest Program, just became available in December 2015
Provides monthly payments tied to income
- Allows borrowers to cap their student loan payments at 10% of discretionary income (vs. 15% with IBR)
- Will forgive remaining debt after 20 years for undergraduate debt only, and 25 years for those with any graduate debt for private sector employment.

Revised Pay As You Earn (REPAYE)

- Similar to PAYE, without disbursement date restrictions
- Unlike with the PAYE and IBR plans, borrowers don't have to show that their income is low compared to their federal student loan debt in order to enter REPAYE. In simple terms, that means that the amount of your debt and your income level won't keep you from qualifying.

Eligible Loans:

- Direct Stafford Loans
- Direct Graduate Plus Loans
- Direct Consolidation Loans
- Consolidated FFEL Loans
- Consolidated Perkins Loans

Non-Eligible Loans:

- FFEL Loans- Not consolidated
- All Parent PLUS loans
- Private Loans
- Perkins Loans- Not consolidated

Revised Pay As You Earn (REPAYE)

Married borrowers' payments are calculated differently: The other income-driven repayment plans use the combined income of you and your spouse to set your payment amount only if you file a joint federal income tax return. If you and your spouse file separate tax returns, your payment amount is based on only your income. REPAYE (with limited exceptions) uses the combined income (and student loan debt) of you and your spouse to set your monthly payment amount, regardless of whether you file a joint tax return or separate returns. This could increase your monthly payment amount.

Beware of Student Loan Debt Relief Scams

- The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) issued a Consumer Advisory stating student loan debt relief company scams may cost consumers thousands of dollars and drive them even further into debt.
- The CFPB warns students to avoid paying third-party debt relief providers for plans the students can easily get for free.
- CFPB cited two companies in particular for illegally marketing student debt relief services: College Education Services and Student Loan Processing.US.
- Third-Party or private companies offering special services do not have the ability to negotiate with creditors in order to obtain a "special deal" under the federal student loan programs. The CFPB Consumer Advisory includes warning signs indicating a company offering student loan debt relief may be a scam.
- Avoid companies where they:
 - Pressure to you pay high upfront fees before providing service
 - Requests for a Federal Student Aid (FSA) PIN, giving them access to your info
