Language courses

Students normally take 8 language credits at the 400-level or higher, and must complete 12 credits in their official language of study if they enter the program satisfying the Institute's minimum requirements. Please review Monterey's language proficiency requirements – www.miis.edu/admissions/requirements/nonproliferation – for more details about this component of your degree. Students can improve language skills over the summer by attending Monterey's Summer Intensive Language Program (SILP) – www.miis.edu/academics/language/summer. If, because of their language level, students have all or part of their 400-level language requirement waived, they can take additional electives.

Students always must complete at least 32 credits at the Monterey Institute.
