Complete description of services rendered, including dates and where services will occur (for example, where a lecture or workshop will be presented):

The 2025 Conference runs from Wednesday, August 13, 2023, until Saturday, August 23 2025, with faculty arriving on Tuesday, August 12, 2025 (August 23 is the departure day). You will have responsibility for teaching a workshop, which will meet five times, conducting individual conferences (30 minutes in length) with your students, and giving a reading (faculty read for 25 minutes).

In addition, we invite you to propose a lecture and/or craft class. (Please see details about these formats in the letter from the director.) We ask for your interest in offering a lecture or craft class via the online Faculty Information Form included on the BL Writers' Faculty Page, and if we are able to add either or both to our roster, we pay additionally: $1000 for a lecture; $500 for a craft class.

Though the conference is not able to pay for travel expenses, room and board will be provided for you and for one person (spouse, partner, or family member) sharing your room. If you would like to bring your family, we try our best to accommodate you in one of our campus houses or locate suitable accommodations nearby.

Amount of Payment: $11,500
